THE QUIET IN THE LAND is an art and education project, based in Luang Prabang, designed to revitalize traditional arts by confronting them with new contemporary art forms. The Lao textiles are known worldwide for the complexity of the techniques used and the richness of their patterns as well as the ability and the patience of their creators. The development of tourism and the commonality of the products on the market would lead us to believe that this richness is threatened and that the quality of the textiles is declining. The objective of this competition is to prove that the creative resources, the creators and the originality that have contributed to building the exceptional reputation of the Lao textiles still exist in Luang Prabang, and that this exceptional reputation can be maintained given the right conditions.

The Quiet in the Land Art and Education Project is organized in collaboration with the Department of Information and Culture, Luang Prabang
